KNIGHTS OF THE WHIP.

Departed Days of Concord Coaches and Six-in-Hand.

The Monarchs of the Mountain Roads.

A Deposed Despot Discourses of the Delightful Past.

Cy. Hawley's Soliloquy on the Lamentable State of the Republic—Why Ned Blair Couldn't Hold Out—Jerry Lynch's Overcoat—Curly Bill's Snow Pile—The Old Jehus.

"Have you read this," said a reporter, handing an old stage driver a recent copy of the GAZETTE, containing an account of a desperate suicide.

"Wonder if that old Cy," said the old whip as he laid the paper down.

"Yes," said the GAZETTE reporter, looking at the account of poor Hawley's suicide, "that was old Cy Hawley whom you know as one of the best drivers on the Placerville or Donner Lake route in the old days when the concord coach and a six-in-hand was good enough for anybody to ride behind."

"Well that's just like Cy. He put his light out just as he driv stage—did it good. Been on a spree, I reckon, for some time, an' didn't see how he could brace up, so he just threw down the lines an' clumb off the box. No use talkin', though, he was a driver, an' there wasn't a mean hair in his head."

"What sort of a fellow was Cy, anyhow? I remember riding with him many a time!" queried the reporter.

Well he was this sort. I remember once when an' me was drivin' on the old Placerville, that there was a fellow named Bezeley who used to beat his horses unmercifully. Over the head, you know, and every other way. Had a fine lot of horses, too. Well Cy loved a good horse, you know, just like a man, so he walks up to this fellow one mornin' and shook him till he was black in the face, an' then, after settin' him down again, said in his quiet way: "Now, look here; if you ever let me catch you at this again I'll break your legs. An' I'll do it good, if I start." Bezeley didn't chip at all. Cy'd a walked his log too quick if he had.

I remember another thing that old Cy did, an' I tell you that it's generally purty good men that does them things. One morning I was up at Crystal lake—been taking some new stock up, and the stage came in about mornin'. Ever been up to the lake?

"Oh, yes; lots of times."

"Well, you know how cold it is up there in the winter time. This mornin' Cy had a big load, and amongst the rest was a little boy that somebody had shipped over without any tag or guard. Well, here come Cy, holdin' the team well in hand, the wind striking him full in the face, his beard all ice an' his teeth a chattering and no coat on. And there was the youngster settin' side of him well wrapped up in Cy's coat and getting along comfortable as you please. A very bad man wouldn't a done that, 'specially when he might have it to do every day."

THE BEST ONE

Cy ever got off though you maybe heard. When he was down over on the Placerville road, he had a piece of road, the worst that anybody ever saw. It was on the old El Dorado grade and just above Brocklins' bridge. To look down at the depth a cool thousand feet and more under you and notice how easy it would be to jump the narrow grade would scare anybody. Why the turns were so sharp that when the leaders swung around you could have set on the box and whipped 'em over the head. You could, no joking. Well, this time it was in early mornin' and stormin' like blazes, Cy had pulled his hat down over his eyes to keep out the snow and was going along at a good gait. An eastern feller that sat with him thought Cy was asleep and looking over at the precipice and at the team doubling up around the turns, he nudged Cy and said:

"Here driver, driver, wake up."

Cy pretended to rouse himself and said: "Alright alright." He pulled his hat down again and the feller got nervous again.

"Here driver, driver. Grate God! wake up."

"Alright" said Cy with a snort 'oily dozing a little,' and down went the hat again.

This eastern man he took one more look at the narrow road and the precipice waitin' for him and got desperate.

"Here, driver," he yelled, "now you wake up and tend to business or I want to walk."

Cy roused himself once more, and lookin' around with a grieved expression, his reins in one hand, said very calmly:

"See here mister, this is my sleepin' ground, and I don't want you to wake me up again."

"Guess you fellows did not get much sleepin' ground on a seventy mile drive, did you?" asked the reporter.

"Well now we didn't, though if you believe me, sleepin' with one eye beats settin' up, an' we all used to do that."

"Who was it?"

WHO BROVE WITH HAWLEY?

"Oh, all the boys, one time and another. There was Dan Smith, the fellow that tipped over in bright moonlight, doly sober, and killed two people. He was a lunk head, not fit to drive a butcher cart. Then there was By. Terrill, Johnny Ulrich, "Whistling Johnny," "Curly Dan" Robbins, "Baldy" Green, Baldy was all for whisky and fun. Then there was Andy Baker, "Old Home-made," and Sam Sneed. You know Sam, didn't you? Always looking for pokers a game. Pretty good one, Sam was. Bill Gearheart, or

CURLY BILL

You've rode with him, many time, I know. Bill was a terrible joser. Always stuffin' some some greeny, and getting the rest of us to prove up for him. I remember one time Bill and me was goin' over the summit, Bill was drivin' an' I was helper—we run on sleighs, you know, and there was a narrow track only for the sleigh to run in. Here and there was the places where the whippettrees scratched the pines, and these marked the depth. An English greeny was ridden with us that night, and stickin' his head out of a fur coat, just like a turtle, he noticed these marks on the trees.

"Aw, dwiver, dwiver," said he, "ow far might those marks be from the hearth?"

"Well," said Bill, they might be a mile and a quarter."

"Oh, hang it, dwiver, 'ow deep is the bloody snow, you know?"

"Well," replied Curly, 'as I said before, stranger, it might be a mile and a quarter, but it's only sixty feet."

"S-i-x-t-y-f-e-e-t! Now dwiver, deprecatingly."

"Ain't it, Lynch?" said Bill, turning to me."

"A trifle over sixty feet," said I, and the Englishman swallowed it."

"He must have been pretty full if he swallowed sixty feet of snow," said the reporter.

"Well, yes; he was, but Bill stuffed 'em all just that way. Curly was one of the best reinsman that ever took up the 'bbons, but goin' across the hills he'd stuff a man so full of them yarns that he wasn't fit to be believed for months after he landed."

now?

"Why, he's in Virginia. D'you ever hear that yarn on old Ned? That was a good one. One mornin' Ned an' me was comin' down from the Summit, an' it was cold enough to freeze a man's ideas. Ned was a little anxious to get in, an' I tell you he driv' like a hungry man. When we got to the bottom of the hill I says:

"What made you drive so like hell, Ned?"

"Well," said he, 'I'll tell you. That brake of mine took fits comin' down and I couldn't do nothin' with it."

"Did you ever hear anything about that fellow?"

JIM LYNCH?

Used to drive with John Wilson, over about Alta."

Reporter—No, I didn't know him."

"Well, Jim was the earliest bird to get away with his wages that ever you saw. At night he'd get his $100, and in the mornin' he'd stand up the ginslinger for a cocktail. Jim had an old blanket overcoat, green on one side and black on the other, that used to come in good play when the thermometer was low spirited. Well, the boys could always tell when Jim was broke, for then his overcoat was plain black. But when he got paid off you might bet that James would blossom out in green and move in the best society unit next day. Whenever that coat showed up black, though, Jim had the benefit of the bankrupt act. Oh, there was lots of the boys that you never seen."

There was old 'Pap' Orandall, the noobiest stage driver that ever sat on a box. Talk about style! It would have done you good to see old 'Pap's' make-up as he mounted the throne. Everything bang up. If the lines were not oiled to suit him, there was a hostler discharged on the return trip. Billy Hodges, he's in Virginia too—called the very best driver ever on the road. He could turn a Concord coach and six horses around in Chamberlain's dining-room, over there. Never drank a drop, and was forever examining his harness and wagon. He was the only man you could trust to rough-lock you when the Geiger grade was all ice. Hodges was a reinsman, and used to drive six blacks into Virginia City that couldn't be beaten. John Wilson had the only mate to that team in the six greys he used to drive over at Alta.

Hank Monk, you know. He's in Carson drivin' still; couldn't live anywhere else 'cept on a coach. Whenever Hank quits drivin' somebody'll have to haul him. He won't want to go far. Charley Wilson, he's in Arizona now and well fixed. Charley Livermore, who went in so strong for gin, and good nature, is there too. Bob Scott, who gave way to the railroad inch by inch, and used to cuss the stage robbers for always pointing shot guns in his face. He said that was worse than useless and damned if he'd stand it. Bill Morrison, too, he's ranchin' now, but would a big sight rather be back on the box. Another queer coon was Bill Blackmore, or 'Slippery Bill,' as the boys used to call him. Drivin' was Bill's delight, and when he drove his lines were loaded with ivory rings, red and white leather hearts, and all that gingerbread work. When Bill wasn't drivin' he tricked himself out in high heels, a slouched hat, puffed hair and a red handkerchief, then Bill was ready to receive callers and move among bell mares himself. But the road and his team!—used to call em Earnest, Bismarck—Marla—all high-falutin', you know.

One night me and Bill was goin' towards Alta, and agreed to take a cut off to avoid a corduroy stretch on ahead. I turned off, and purty soon Bill yelled, "Wo! wo!" I stopped.

"Dam! I can fine this road," said Bill.

Well, that night me and Bill slept in the same road, an' I woke up believe that somebody was bein' knifed. There set Bill sound asleep, reachin' for his lines, and yellin'!

"Wo! wo! Dam! I can fine this road."

Worst feller to talk in his sleep you ever see. One time in Sacramento we slept together, and they had this netting hung round to keep out mosquitoes. Bill got inside, and was asleep in two minutes. Purty soon I hears a racket, and there was Bill a-hold of the netting (thought it was his lines), and yellin' "Wo! wo!" Purty soon he got his back up, because it didn't mind, and givin' the machine a wrench pulled it down atop of himself and blacked his eye.

Come in here an' I'll show you that picture of Bill packing the Chinamen out of the mud-hole when he got stuck. Nels. Hammond had it taken in Dutch Flat, and all the boys are in it."

Reporter—Wait till I make a note of that last story."

"What! you don't mean to say you've been takin' this chaff down?"

"Yes; I'm going to print it."

"Oh, you're joshin' me." Well, drive on, if you must; but just say somethin' for the boys on my account. Jest tell them railroad fellars that six spanking good horses and a well oiled Concord coach is just good enough travelin' for your's truly. Jest tell 'em, too, that when they talk about men, they want to make the acquaintance of the old boys I've been runnin' on about, for they were the jolliest and truest lot that ever traveled. I'd rather ride through the pines once more on the box with Johnny Burnett or Cy Hawley, an' the silk playing in amongst those six roadsters, than to take in the Paris Exposition on Stanford's special car. If you're goin' to print any o' this put in what I tell you, for they were the boys for anybody's money. All gone, now. There'll never be another stage line like that. They've turned sailors and ranchers, I suppose, but I tell you that when they used to meet at Donner lake and Alta around the blazin' fire in the bar-room and begin ter swap lies, I tell you that was a session worth attendin'.

The winds brushing the pines and the clatter of the stage as the new driver took her out, was all the music we wanted, and it was a handsome lot of good-hearted fellows that toasted their shins below the fire. Well a hundred miles in twelve hours was good time, and the boys lived pretty fast. They didn't use the brake much in them days, an' so wor out purty early. Let's go in here and water our team. I'm gittin' warm just a-thinkin' about the road."

Reporter—Can't you give me anythin' else?

"No, you've got a load, I guess. Jest sing out all aboard an' drive on. But hold hard a minute; don't you print my name, now. If you do, look out. Now I put that much of a hold-back on you, an' you want to mind the rein."

Duel Between Railroad Directors.

GAYLESTON, September 6.—The News Dalles special says: Ira Harris and J. W. Calder, the former receiver of the Dalles and Wichita railroad and the latter its manager, were met on the streets to-day by Messrs. Palmer, Ochenchir and Roesser, ex-directors of that road. Some words passed between Harris and Roesser, when Harris struck Roesser with his fist and was knocked down by that person with a cane. Roesser then drew a pistol and began shooting at Calder, who was standing a little aloof. Ochenchir and Roesser also drew weapons and opened fire on Calder, who fell mortally wounded. His last act was to draw his pistol and fire at his assailants. The three ex-directors surrendered themselves to Sheriff Harris unhurt. The cause was railroad complications.

The Minnesota Republican State Convention met at noon Thursday, and renominated by acclamation for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, S. H. Nichols, and for State Auditor, O. P. Whitcomb.

YELLOW FEVER.

Another Case in Cincinnati—One in Chicago—To-Day's Reports.

St. Louis, September 6.—W. A. Pollock, M. Kretchlar and C. M. Williams, prominent citizens of Greenville, Mississippi, are here. They report that the yellow fever, has obtained a strong foothold there, and that there will be great suffering and destitution among the people. Some of the inhabitants have already fled, and of the remainder a large proportion are negroes. The place has no railway connections, and as all traffic by the river has ceased, the town is cut off from the world except by telegraph. There is sufficient food in the town for the present, but money and hospital supplies, these gentlemen say, are badly needed, and urgently appeal to the relief committees of the North to for help. From the situation of the city, and the rapid increase of the fever since last Saturday, it is feared that Greenville will be another Grenada.

Another young man, named James Myers, of Gallapoli, Ohio, who had been temporarily employed upon the ill-fated steamer Porter, died of the fever yesterday.

Chicago, September 6.—Numerous alleged cases have been run down by the reporters and physicians within a month, but only one has been found to be genuine. To-day, however, a refugee from Memphis, named Jacob Missah, was found on Schiller street with a real case of the fever. He was removed to quarters outside of the city limits, where it is believed the careful nursing of friends will effect a cure.

MANY DEATHS AT HOLLY SPRINGS.

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss., Sept. 6.—Over seventy new cases and eight deaths are reported to-day. Others will follow to-morrow. The disease is very fatal, taking rapidly from among our best people. The postmistress and her assistants are all down. The operator and expressman deserted his post. An operator from New Orleans took charge this morning. He has done three days work in one, and is still at it. We need doctors and more nurses badly. Doctors West, Daney, Dancief and McKay are all down.

DATA FROM MEMPHIS.

MEMPHIS, September 6.—Doctor Avent and Dr. Brown, Secretary of the Board of Health, are down, also A. K. Hames, druggist, and Henry White, business manager of the Appeal. The physicians are divided in their opinion in reference to the fever, some contending that it is in abatement to-day, and that the late cases are not so violent, and others holding the contrary opinion. Kyer, one of the volunteer telegraph operators from Louisville, died to-night, and John Connelly and E. W. Gibson were stricken down to-day. The force is now greatly reduced, the chief operator having but one assistant during the day and two at night. All have done double duty since the fever commenced. The force of compositors on the morning papers is reduced to two each. Owing to the inability of country undertakers to bury the pauper dead, the Citizens' Relief Committee to-day took the matter in hand, districted the city and employed undertakers and a force of men to assist them. All the priests have been stricken down except Father Kelly, Alenus and William Walsh. Captain Cummins of the steamer Coopers was taken off his boat this evening sick with the fever. The Howard medical corps reports 140 new cases additional to the reports made to the Board of Health. Twenty-four sick were received at a Howard infirmary to-day.

WHAT CHARITY IS DOING.

NEW ORLEANS, September 6.—The Peabody Substantance Association issues an address to the public; stating its wants, objects and workings. It states that business is stifled, industry paralyzed and the country towns closed against the city. All the poor people without work must be fed, and the Peabody Association is trying to supply their wants. They are helpless. The Howard nurse them, but give no meals. The destitution is greater than the disease. Nine thousand people have been fed in five days' time, during which the association has exhausted the rations which have been furnished by the citizens. Two thousand dollars per day is now necessary, possibly for forty days. They urgently appeal for aid in this pressing emergency.

Another Stage Robbery.

FLORENCE, (Arizona), Sept. 5.—The stage that left here on the 1st instant was robbed twenty miles west of Maricopa Wells on the night following its departure. Three bars of bullion, the treasure box and the mails were taken, all the passengers were robbed, and all the stage horses stolen. The bullion was one bar of silver for G. S. Webster, of San Francisco, valued at $1000, and two more for the Bank of California, worth about $1700. The driver and four passengers were left alone on the desert, and were obliged to foot it to Maricopa. This is the fifth robbery that has occurred in the vicinity in the last three weeks. Two good men have been sent after the highwaymen.

James R. Goodin was nominated for Governor and George Ummether for Lieutenant-Governor.

Hon. Frank Welch, Republican member of Congress for Nebraska, died of apoplexy Wednesday night at Neligh. He was a candidate for renomination. His death will necessitate the election of two Congressmen on the 5th of November, one to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term in the forty-fifth Congress and one to fill the term ending March 4, 1881.

A Singular Collision.

(Oakland Tribune.)

Two gentlemen were proceeding along San Pablo avenue about 11 o'clock Saturday night, when they heard a feeble call for help proceeding from the vacant space between the avenue and Grove street, this side of the junction. Going to the spot they found a well-dressed white man and a well-dressed Chinaman engaged in a life and death struggle, both covered with blood and nearly exhausted. The Chinaman had scratched all the skin out of his nose and seriously injured one of his arms. The white man, disabled and nearly exhausted from the loss of blood, was clinging to the Chinaman's queue with a grip of death. When separated each accused the other of having attempted to rob him, and each demanded that both be arrested. After hearing their respective stories the peace makers concluded that the difficulty grew out of a mutual misunderstanding, and allowed the parties to go. They each said they had been fighting more than a quarter of an hour. Nearly a quarter of an acre of ground where they fought was torn up as if a bull fight had taken place on the premises.

Horrible Tyranny.

NEW YORK, September 5.—Kearney received to-day a letter dated Newark, New Jersey, and the following extract will appear in the Sun and Herald to-morrow and explain itself:

Dear Kearney: It is with pain we send you an account of what we had to do in Newark since you were here. The tyrant Nugent, taking offense at what you said here last Monday night, compelled us all, over 600 working-men who labor in his factory, to march through the streets to a public hall, which he paid for. His foremen and clerks, who were compelled to go were there and drew-up resolutions and had them adopted. We had to submit or abide the consequences. Only a few of his minions said "Aye." When the question was put the great body remained silent, till some one mentioned your name, when an outburst of tremendous applause followed.

An Indian Police.

(Arizona Sentinel.)

Stage-robbering on the Tucson road has now become a risky occupation. A large sum of money has been raised by the people of Tucson and arrangements have been made with the Pima, Maricopa and Papago Indians for trailing and capturing stage robbers, dead or alive. Similar arrangements are being made here for setting Yumas on track of robbers. The road was never so safe as it is now, and it will be safe for some months to come.

Fast Life in New York.

(Boston Journal.)

Fernando Wood was written down a few months ago a millionaire. He had a son who survived under the name of "Calhoun Wood." His father gave him an allowance. He gave him more—he gave him an unlimited credit. The son of such a father could get trusted anywhere for anything. He drove a fine team, and owed Dunham for the hire. He wore hand clothes, and the bill stood over. The hotel were glad of his custom, and the full ledger page run on to the next. He stopped one day, and now asks that the bankrupt sponge be drawn over his accounts. Young Wood is not alone in this matter. Elegant men, who wear fine raiment, who live in costly chambers in costly hotels, pay little money for their board. Some put up bonds on wild lands at Texas, or bonds of dilapidated railroads, or exhibit a bundle called "securities."

These are held fast and safe under the lock and key of the landlord. One of our most noted hotel men failed last year, and had a houseful of such frauds, and his safe full of such securities. One institution is doing an insurance business on securities that the Insurance Department at Albany would not receive. A lot of grindstones would be as valuable.

Hanged to a Lamp Post.

SANDUSKY, Sept. 5.—William Taylor, the colored man who is supposed to have murdered a white girl, Miss McDonnell, was taken from the Sheriff this morning and hanged by a mob to a lamp post. The authorities were utterly incapable of managing the mob or doing their duty.

THE HONEST PLAN.
We are asked what we ought to do for the people of Washoe. We ought to nominate their delegates to State and county Conventions and elect them the reason that a delegate is bound to the power that creates or delects him. If a being a candidate for office which he expects to obtain through the services of B, C and D, delegates in convention, and B, C and D agree if elected to convention, to support A for such office and thereupon A makes a ticket composed of B, C and D and procures their election as delegates to convention, then B, C and D in convention are bound to nominate A. The citizens and taxpayers of Washoe county composing any great political party meet in mass meeting and nominate B, C and D delegates to convention and elect them, B, C and D are in honor bound to the citizens and taxpayers of Washoe county to nominate from the body of the people who have delegated them that ever, those citizens who are, in the judgment of the convention, best qualified to discharge the official duties of the several offices in the gift of the people. That is what we ought to do. Concert of action must be had. Organize, gentlemen. Come forward and do it. You don't want the candidates to nominate themselves. If you want these self-nominations forced upon you the GAZETTE will be satisfied with your faction. Choose your men and walk in it.

THE MAIN QUESTION.
There is one little matter which the people of this county should regard, and that is the rate of taxation. The experience of the past two years has shown rather expensive to citizens of this county. They have paid several thousand dollars for nothing, and it is no time that they determined whether they desire an increase or a decrease in the tax rate. If you are not satisfied with the rate of taxation, let the Clerks, Sheriffs and Commissioners shall make for you the best balance sheet which was submitted in '77, declare yourself to effect. If you desire that such a balance sheet be modified so that worth services shall not be rewarded at exorbitant rates. Remember one thing, that you can endorse the old management, or endorse by any sort of action in the county. There have been bills collected which were never chargeable against the county, and the men who collected them are now defying the law and an angry people. If you want to endorse these men for another season, let them. If not, repudiate them in every act between now and the day of election. The time for small talk and back scratching has passed away. This is essentially a day of action, and every citizen should have a share in it. Make your own bed, and payers, for you will have to lie in it.

THE WRIGHT FRACTION RIGHT.
Certain Republicans in Washoe county are anxious for the election of a King as Judge of the Second Judicial District. These Republicans are few in number, and all belong to the old court-house crowd, who has ruled Washoe county for years. They recognize the fact that Judge Wright has rendered them valuable services in the past, and they also know that the Senator stands no chance for re-election. With old Verbum Sap, "the Senator," to the fore, a ring was formed for the purpose of electing a Democrat, unless Wright was elected. The Washoe county political circle has entered into a conspiracy, which they are putting into effect. To the end that man these ringers, they are going for dummy's delegates, Wright, too. When the next election meets, however, it will be found that the dummy has vanquished the Wright men have been elected. This is a clever move on the part of the people, and we are warned in time. We are warned in time, but do not let us be deceived. We will make you vote a lie.

EDITORIAL NOTES.
Catherine Lorence, vulgarly called Kate, has walked into trouble in Virginia City. Kate was backed by the press as a unit. Every ambitious reporter on the Comstock was lobbying for the position of referee in her walking matches. And the defeated ones were kept tired all the time by their ambition to make Miss Lorence a walker. The last walk, however, was too much for her admirers. According to the report Miss Kate stepped at various times during her late contest, in which she was beaten by John Oddy, and became half-crazy with rage. She also heaped vile epithets and miscellaneous profanity upon the spectators, abusing everybody indiscriminately. The disappointed reporter speaks of the matter with great severity, as follows:
Those who have seen Miss Lorence walk against time have felt inclined to encourage the cultivation of her of her remarkable powers of pedestrianism, but only a few such scenes as those of last night will be required to bring female pedestrianism into merited disfavor with all respectable people.
A Napa county paper tells of one "Buck" English, a young man now in San Quentin from Lake county, who is said to possess the best memory of any man in the State of California. He has been known to listen to sermons preached from the pulpit, requiring three-quarters of an hour for their delivery, and then go out of the church and repeat them, almost word for word, from beginning to end. "Buck" has evidently a good advantage over his fellow-convicts. If he should ever be "cut off in his prime" his ghost would be able to repeat his death warrant, which would be a great consolation, surely. "Buck," however, is entirely unworthy of note, compared with a young man whom we knew. He could repeat whole books from the Bible with neatness and dispatch. The ten commandments were always on his tongue's end. He failed as a stock broker the other day for $350,000, and now he can't remember what his assets are.
The following theatrical regulation has been adopted by the police Commissioners of Boston: "Seventh—Police officers are not to interfere, even at the request of managers or their agents, with persons who, in a reasonable and decorous manner, express their dissent by hissing or otherwise at what is presented on the stage." Which is perfectly correct. If it is considered a compliment for a man who has paid his money to see a performance to express a favorable opinion with his hands it ought not to be a misdemeanor for him to express an unfavorable opinion through his teeth. It is decidedly cheeky on the part of managers or actors to object to anything but praise from the well-taxed audience.
The Silver State, hitherto one of the most blatant howlers against a third term, now trains "mit" Bradley. How much did you get, Kelly?
The above is from the Carson Tribune and the Silver State knocks the breath out of Verbum Sap at one blow. We beg to inform the good Deacon that we never did "blat" any against a third term except for President, the highest office in the gift of the people, and never received a dollar or a cent from a candidate for advertisement. The Deacon truthfully say as much?
Old "Verbum Sap," of the Tribune, who never studied, bless him, makes his phonograph say: "Jas. Gettys, 'chief' of the Ormsby, will have charge of the cuisine of both houses." The way in which this charming old man who never studied, bless him, coquettes with a French word, and wins it over to his native chinook is really delightful. The Deacon bears himself like an assassin towards all languages, and is in fact a literary communist. Verbum was originally intended for a "cuisine" himself.
Edith Francis, of Galena, is still seriously indisposed, and the Gold Hill News is indiscreet enough to give reports of her babbings while in a delirious state. The young woman is rhyming blossom with bosom, and affirming that there is one who will understand. It is surprising that a newspaper like the News should thus wantonly expose to mortification the virtuous citizens of Galena. Let us draw the mantle of chaste charity over the whole business. Get thee to a monastery, Edith.
Phillip Arnold, the builder of the celebrated diamond scheme, by which he made $450,000, is in Elizabethtown, Kentucky. His right breast contains a charge of buckshot, the result of a fight with a rival banker. They say Arnold will not be prosecuted because of his standing. This moves us to advise all young men to "go West and set up a diamond field."

The hardest kind of a liar to deal with is the small minded malicious who while pretending to say is jocularly tells a damaging falsehood about you to your friends and paves himself from punishment when charged by you with his falsity by snickering over his lie as something he thought you would be sure to think funny.—Burlington Hawkeye.
The Hawkeye man must have lived in Reno some time or other and been acquainted with a brilliant journalist or two.
Widow Van Cott, who has made herself a bride of the church for the obvious reason that, bound to be bride of some kind, she could no make mankind forget poor old Van's fate, is reported to be on her way to Reno to set up a revival. Let us remember Van and harden ourselves in sin.
An exchange says: We are informed that one of our enterprising, and we should add lucky, townsmen, has made a raise of $60,000 in Sierra Nevada stock. He bought several hundred shares at $22, and intends to hold it for $300.
We represent to our readers that this holding of stock for some arbitrary figure is rather unjust. It is also unfortunate sometimes.
Several candidates have discontinued the project of calling a citizen's meeting. This means something, but as we are not willing to misrepresent their positions on this subject, we shall give them another day in which to explain why they are afraid to go before the people now as well as after the primaries.
The Austin Reveille will soon appear in a new dress. Our sister journal needs it. At present she struggles into our office with her skirts all muddy and bedraggled. She must have been under the controlling influence of an drink when the flood came, and got rolled about in the mire.
N. Y. Herald: Mrs. Mackay, wife of the bonanza king, has a sapphire which was once the property of a Russian prince, and it cost her $150,000. It is an inch in diameter. Her pearl necklace cost $100,000, and her coral set cost $18,000.
The Russian prince denies—however, let that pass.
John H. Dennis, of the Tuscarora Times-Review, denies that he is a candidate for the Legislature, although the Democracy want him for State Senator from Elko. Mr. Dennis desires no office within the gift of the people.
We fear it, we fear it. The State staggers under the blow.
The lecherous thafe in unpaid-for broadcloth who earns a almy living by editing the cancerous columns of the San Francisco Exchange defies the fiery Rupert of the GAZETTE. We ignore the journalistic vagabone.
The Omaha Fire.
OMAHA, September 6.—The bodies of four firemen have been unearthed during the day—William McNamara, Lewis Wilson (single), and Alonza Randall and John Lee (both married), all young men. Identification was made by means of watches and badges worn by the deceased. Henry Lockfield was fatally injured, receiving a fracture of the skull. The Grand Central hotel was a five-story brick, 132 feet square, and cost $300,000. It was opened in 1873, and had just been refitted under the new management of Kitchen Brothers of Leavenworth.

—The town is beautified by the appearance upon the street of a great many desert Piutes who, for some reason or other, have come in to see the sights. The town bucks and squaws patronize them as greenhorns.
—When a candidate for Constable or some such weighty office treats you to a drink and begins to talk of the earlier and purer days of the republic you may be sure that he will ask you in a few minutes which precinct you vote in.

End of the Yellow Fever Fright.
Those fearful of a visit from Yellow Jack may reassure themselves. Division Superintendent Free telegraphed from Wadsworth last evening to Dr. Bergman that if he (the doctor) was sure that the sickness in the car quarantined at Camp 25 was not yellow fever, he would have the car coupled on to the emigrant train going west, this afternoon, and sent on its way. The doctor replied that the disease was no yellow fever, and the railroad order was doubtless issued accordingly. Thus, for the present, ends what promised to be a reasonably exciting scare. Reno was pretty well frightened, but is now disposed to giggle and blow about its fine anti-yellow fever climate.

An Infernal Lie.
The Brevity man of the San Francisco Alta is convicted of a shameful crime of which these are the particulars: A Frenchman has opened a Hymenial Academy in Kentucky, in which young ladies are taught the marriage service, with all the proper signs, sobs and hysterics, in three easy lessons.

Crystal Peak Lumber Company.
An important change has taken place in the Crystal Peak Lumber company. Messrs Hamlin, Maccham and McIntosh have retired. J. F. Hoy, for a long time Superintendent, entering into the firm which now stands as Hoy & Haller.

A CALL

For a Citizens Meeting to Nominate Delegates to the Conventions

The undersigned Republicans believe that delegates will not represent the people unless nominated by them.

That twenty men who want office should not be allowed to name twenty-three men to represent in convention seven hundred voters.

That the issues and interests of a county should figure in the choice of her representatives in convention, and that candidates forget these matters in their personal interests.

That candidates who live in Reno have no right to exclude other worthy citizens of the county from official aspirations by naming twenty-three men solely in their own interests.

That a candidate's choice is not necessarily a good one, and that we consider it a duty to rebuke such a course for once and all.

That the people should nominate their servants as well as elect them, and that candidates should submit to the vote of the people, not attempt to dictate it.

Therefore the undersigned would call a public meeting of the citizens of Reno for Monday night, September 9th, to nominate delegates which shall represent public wishes as well as private interests. This call is not made in the interest of any clan, nor for the purpose of rebuking or censuring any worthy citizen named by the candidates, but that the members of the party may make their own choice and be collectively responsible for the results.

The meeting is called for Monday night, September 9th, 1878, in Reno, at Smith's Academy of Music, and every man who voted for Hayes and Wheeler, is cordially invited to attend and vote.

There are several other petitions which have not been heard from, but eighty-five other names are now in this office, under copies of this petition. We had hoped that the full petitions might be received at our usual hour of going to press. They are too late, however, and will be inserted in another issue.

A STRAIGHT-OUT REPUBLICAN.

Whose Party Feelings Have Been Shocked—Get Out Your Scratchers.

"This is a movement of soreheads," contemptuously observed a prominent Republican candidate this afternoon as he saw citizens signing the call for a meeting on Monday evening next to see if the people ought to allow candidates to dictate to them who they should vote for. "It's a mean attempt to split the party. Dang a man who will go back on Republicanism. It's our first duty to preserve unity in the party." Then he walked out with his head in the air.

"Who's that fellow?" asked a farmer from Glendale. The one addressed replied:

"He's Jobbins who wants to be kept in office and he was one of the bosses of the candidates' conclave the other night and helped wring in this delegate layout on the people."
"Seems to be a straight-out and out Republican," observed the rancher.
"Oh, yes. He voted for Greeley and is down on Hayes' Southern policy and jumped the traces election before last because his brother-in-law wasn't nominated. He's got to be powerful straight since he got into office, but they do say that the grand jury found his books weren't just as straight as they ought to have been."

"That's just the kind of rooster that always feels himself personally insulted if he ain't allowed to turn the crank of the party machine. I want to scratch him. What did you say his name was?"

The name was given. Being unfit for publication it does not appear in this column.

Found.
The old woman who lived in a shoe has at last been traced. She was born in Nevada county, and her granddaughter resides in Truckee. This young lady rents out the box toe in front of the Truckee Republican office.

AN IMPRESSIVE CERMONY.

A Marriage According to Civil Law by Judge Richardson.

Judge Richardson doesn't pretend to be a parson and therefore isn't as well up in the marriage ceremony as the slimy supporters of a decaying hierarchy are. The young couple stood up before him the other evening and the judge inquired in a cross-questioning tone of the groom:

"Are you a citizen of the United States?"

The groom took hold of the waistband of his trousers and tugged, saying:

"I voted for Tilden Judge."

"Why James!" faintly exclaimed the blushing creature by his side.

"It's a fact Emmer!" protested James rather indignantly and glaring at the Judge.

His Honor coughed and demanded severely:

"Do you, sir, as a citizen of Nevada and a lawful voter of Reno solemnly declare that you will forsake all other evils and cleave to this one?"

"I've money to bet on it," responded the groom growing pale but placing his arm around the waist of the shrinking bride.

"Then," cried the judge, bringing his fist down on his desk, "God has joined you together and damn the man that puts you asunder. The fee is just what you like to give, young fellow."

It was pretty liberal and the Court set them up and kissed the new wife several times besides.

An Ideal Renoite.
"If I were a man—" said a lady leaning on a gentleman's arm as she swept along Commercial Row last evening. THE GAZETTE reporter didn't hear any more. He knew what she meant. If she were a man she would go home early and never be late for dinner, nor say a cross word to her wife under any circumstances, no matter how provoking. She wouldn't drink beer for the world, and as for smoking or chewing, such horrid habits should never be thought of. She would never get into trouble with other men, and if any man called her a liar and slapped her face, or told infamous lies about her, she would treat him with silent contempt. Her shirt would always be clean and her boots blacked, and she would show that she was a gentleman by avoiding the company of rude men, and believing woman to be a pure and holy being. She would never make her wife justly jealous by being reasonably civil to young and pretty women. She would never go anywhere without taking her wife with her. She would go to church regularly, and have a drooping mouth. Everybody would find her grave and courteous at all times. And the lady was perfectly correct, too. That's the kind of man reporter is himself.

Virtuous Bachelors.
These seasons of political excitement are productive of one virtue among young men—early rising. Behold then the bachelor Renoite rising forth at early sun-up with his hat drawn down over his eyes making tracks for up town at the rate of five miles an hour. Does he sing softly to himself at about early to bed, early to rise health, wealth and happiness? Not plenty. He growls at his folly for not having brought a bottle home with him and saved himself this tramp for the imperative cocktail.

A Bold Young Man.
"I propose to spend $500 on primary day to elect the old court-house ticket," cried a young man with side-whiskers to-day, "and I'll have fifty men out working for it." This is very kind of this young man with side-whiskers and, even if he does not succeed by this lavish expenditure of money and men in electing the court-house ticket, he may have the consolation of knowing, that the people will never allow him to be burdened with the cares of the Lieutenant-Governorship.

The Tin Horn and Its Tooter.
The tin horn, with a colored person at the end of it, which disturbs the peace of Reno by night and drowns the other noises of it by day, was out again last night. The colored attachment was selling hot corn on the cob, and some justly indignant sufferer dropped a quid of tobacco among the horn's partner's wares. The business was consequently destroyed for the night. The horn, however, is abroad to-day, compelling Pompey to blow the fact that ice-cream—and good ice-cream—is on sale.

Delicate Pleasantry.
"What have you got them there holes punched in yer hat fer?" asked one Reno slave of fashion to another to-day as his stylish eye perceived ventilating apertures in the crown of his friend's hat.

"Fer coolessen an' agin yaller fever," replied the gentleman with dignity.

"Well, its real good hearted of ye," said the inquirer in a voice full of feeling. "It does give the bugs a chance to look out."

Paper Lined Ditches.
A new field has been opened to journalism in Washoe county D. W. O'Connor, the Glendale farmer, has discovered that old newspapers make an excellent lining for irrigating ditches in sandy soil. They prevent the water from being absorbed. James Hart of the canyon came to this effect yesterday and bought about a cart load of our valued exchanges to use for the same purpose.

EARLY DAYS OF BODIE.

An Interesting History of the Camp—How the Man who gave His Name to the Camp Died.

[Bodie Standard.]

Judge H. Kever was over from Aurora Monday, for the first time in eight or nine years. He is perhaps the oldest pioneer in this section, having come to the placery at Dogtown in 1859, soon after they were struck. He was also one of the first prospectors at the Mono diggings, which were located in the month of July, 1859. Here ditches were dug, locations made and cabins built. In the following May these claims proved to be very rich and $100 per day was taken out to the man. W. S. Bodie, discoverer of Bodie district, was with Judge Kever, both at Dogtown, and later at the Mono diggings, but he and another party left and came over this way on a prospecting trip. In October, Bodie and Taylor carried to Mono several sacks of dirt, and, as this dirt made very handsome returns, they came back to the camp near this place to prospect further. This caused a great many to come over to what is now Bodie district, and a sight survey was made, to see if it was possible to bring the water from Virginia creek, but it was thought impossible, so the idea was abandoned. A greater portion of those who came over then returned to Mono. In November, 1861, there was a very severe snow storm, and Bodie and his partner, getting scarce of provisions, went over to the Mono settlement to get a fresh supply. The snow being too deep for animals to travel, they took all they could carry on their backs, and again started over in this direction. When about three miles from camp Bodie gave out, and told his partner to go on and endeavor to get through. His partner, becoming well satisfied that nothing could be gained by remaining, left Bodie well wrapped up in his blankets, and after suffering great hardships, he succeeded in reaching his camp. Next day the partner, and a man who had been left in charge of the cabin, returned to the spot where Bodie has been left, and found him frozen to death. They packed him in on their shoulders and buried him near the town site of this place. The one which was carried by Bodie and his party to Mono was obtained on the south side of Silver City, nearly opposite this place. Very little water was to be had, but the few who succeeded in getting a little made an ounce a day to the man. Uncle Billy O'Hara lived here at that time and did as much as anyone toward keeping this district alive. What is now known as the Standard mine was almost entirely owned by him, and he gave a couple of miners the privilege of going to work, and anything was struck they should pay him $1700 for the claim, but if nothing was found he should receive nothing and the miners would be out their labor. Silas B. Smith and Levy & Co. of Aurora, also did a great deal toward assisting prospectors in this section, and deserve much credit. About three years ago a very rich ledge was struck in the Standard mine and an arastra was put up and in a very short time the owners cleared $40,000. Soon after this the Standard was sold to the parties who incorporated it, and who now own it.

A Dead Thing Crawls.
John Hopkins was a candidate in the earlier and purer days of the republic. He knew that to go before the people honestly he must put forward delegates avowedly in his interests. But John Hopkins has been stealing from the people, add did not dare to meet the charge, so he, being "foxy" withal, resolved upon another plan.

Said he: "There is Jones and Smith both running for office, and they are willing to go before the people. They will be satisfied with anybody for delegates, because they are new in politics. So I will call a meeting of candidates, lure these young ones and four-time-loser into it, and they, being easily satisfied, can be induced to nominate my delegates. The people are always inactive, and with Jones and Smith will endorse my men because they do not know the situation. I will be quiet and inoffensive to everybody, and when the delegates so selected nominate me, the people will forget that I did it, and will believe they ought to stand in with me. If anybody opposes me I will tell them they are splitting the party, and all good Republicans will shrink from that. So, you see, I am a popular man among the people, and they are all anxious for my re-election. Besides I have the spoils to work with, and they count. If the people meddle with the affair, I will split the party myself. So, looking the whole situation over, I consider it a dead thing."

Moral—John Hopkins was beaten by the people.

This affair happened 100,000 miles from Washoe county.

War-Horses Scouring.
The old ring-masters and other case-hardened war steeds of the Republican party have been in a state of unpleasant excitement to-day. They have have blocked the sidewalks in places and encumbered the corners and sought relief at frequent intervals in the saloons. The court house squad have been running round in a sort of frenzy. And all because the GAZETTE has pointed out the cheek of twenty candidates in nominating a ticket of twenty-three delegates to the County Convention, expecting the people to vote for these delegates without having a voice in their nomination. The seasoned political sinners naturally scour, and their rage made the streets lively.

SHORT BITS.

A Terrible Tale of the Sea.

The New York World publishes the thrilling romance entitled "The Son of a Gambler." I. He entered a schooner at Buffalo, and offered to work his passage to Bay City, on condition that he did not have to go aloft. "Aye, aye, my hearty," said the captain. "The weather was pleasant and work light, so the men gathered in the forecastle and played cards, and the son of a gambler showed them how to throw 'monte.'" At eight bells he was the only capitalist on board.

said the jolly tars. III. A storm arose. The captain bade the jolly tars rig a deck pump to the centre-board box, and called upon the son of a gambler to work that pump until it "sucked." As the schooner had sprung a leak and their lives were in danger. "Shiver my lay-outs," said the son of a gambler, and he began to pump the lake up. IV. "Land ho!" exclaimed the look-out, as the good ship made Detroit on her weather bow. "Captain," said the son of a gambler, "I'm aye ashore here." "Avast, ye land lubber," cried the aged mariner; "you shipped for Bay City, and to Bay City you'll go. To the pump!" V. When they got back to Bay City they took back all the money the son of a gambler had won from them and kicked him ashore. "Blast my advantage cards!" exclaimed the son of a gambler.

A New Kind of Horseshoe.

In England they are adopting a horseshoe made of cow-hide, and known as the Yates shoe. It is composed of three thicknesses of cow-hide compressed into a steel mould, and then subjected to a chemical preparation. It is claimed for it that it lasts longer and weighs only one-fourth as much as the common iron shoe; that it will never cause the hoof to split, nor have the least injurious influence on the foot. It requires no calks; even on the asphalt the horse never slips. The shoe is so elastic that the horse's step is lighter and surer. It adheres so closely to the foot that neither dust nor water can penetrate between the shoe and the hoof.

One of our contemporaries accuses an orator with saying "more better," and claims that such is not used by statesmen. But there are exceptions to the best rules. For instance, General Logan is a statesman, and he was heard to say one evening to a small but cheerful audience, "I see your five and I go you two better."

A troop of Baltimore gamblers have been playing cards on Sunday afternoons in the old Methodist cemetery. They have even gone so far as to use the tombstones for card tables. All gamblers have been played frequently upon the grounds, and one Sunday a cock fight was arranged in the excavation of an old grave.

Postmaster General Key and party were received by General Coey in San Francisco yesterday. On the 6th they went to Belmont, the guests of Senator Sharon. The party it is understood will visit Los Angeles, Yosemite, the Big Trees, Lake Tahoe and the Geysers, and possibly Oregon, before their return.
